

ABSTRACT

There is described a display system wherein the system provides a user with a plurality of displays for view information from a computer including at least one display which is body-supported, such as a head-mounted display. The system 10 reduces the information, which normally would be displayed in a head-mounted display, thus reducing a user's dependence on the head-mounted display.